

FUERTEVENTURA

Probably the widest selection of conditions and sources of distraction in Europe. Wild and sophisticated all year round.

The volcanic island of Fuerteventura is 90 km off of the African coast, and 40% of the Island is National Park. Thousands of years worth of sand blown from the Sahara has given Fuerteventura 200 km of deserted golden sandy beaches and the label "Europe's Only Desert". At sunset sleepy sand dunes are offset by stunning red, ochre and purple landscapes. A large choice of venues and conditions make Fuerteventura a fantastic all year destination for windsurfers, kites and surfers alike.

WIND AND WEATHER

SPOT MAP

THE SPOT

FBC Fuerteventura (Flag Beach) is at the northern tip of the island on a beautiful 10 km stretch of Natural Reserve facing Isla de Lobos and Lanzarote. The north east trade winds blow side shore from the left, increasing throughout the day. The best windsurfing is to be had between May and August when the winter swells have progressively given way to flat water/bump and jump conditions, but great windsurfing in varying conditions can be enjoyed here 365 days a year. The beach is large and open with an unlimited outer sailing area and is protected by reefs at both ends. 200 m offshore there is a deep water reef forming nice waves and swell conditions giving excellent jumping as well as a very smooth introduction for beginner waveriders. There is a sand launch area between two shallow reefs in front of the center with slight shorebreak. The wind is more unpredictable in the winter as trade winds move further south, but this is when the best waves can be enjoyed.

THE CENTER

There is a new center since 2010, which is open all year round. It is stocked with the latest Fanatic and North Sails kit and also offers kiting and surfing safaris and instruction. FBC Fuerte is the only center on the island where you can take your rental kit off-site and visit some of the fantastic wave spots around like Glas Beach and Cotillo, either alone or guided. The spot is more suited to intermediate and advanced level windsurfers. In the summer beginners are taken by short transfer to Cotillo and taught on a protected double lagoon which is always super flat. The water is clear and shallow with a sandy bottom – the perfect learning environment and a truly beautiful untouched bay.
